

February 2025

Early last year, we shared that we and Equipping Farmers International (EFI) were partnering with Ika Christian Mission to upgrade some dorm buildings that they have generously agreed to let us use for accommodation for our training programs, in between the Christian camps that they host, until we are able to build dorm buildings on our project site.

We are excited to announce that not only is the upgrade completed, but we were able to use the dorms for a training for the first time this month! From February 10-13, we held two 2-day regenerative agriculture trainings for 60 students and staff, hosted by Ika Bible School, at the site.

This training also helps us realize another one of our goals—to start introducing this training to Bible school students across Nigeria and to eventually have it become part of their curriculum. (Also in attendance was the provost of another Bible school who hopes to bring the training to his school soon, too!)

EFI specifically focuses on cultivating agricultural discipleship for enhanced food security and livelihoods, envisioning a network of churches eradicating hunger and insecurity globally. (Learn more at efi-intl.org.) Equipping pastors-in-training with this knowledge helps to fulfill this vision. It's just another way of using regenerative agriculture to help share the Gospel!
